The opinions, findings, and conclusions or recommendations expressed in this publication are those of the author(s) and do not necessarily reflect the views of the U.S. Department of Justice.*

The Winston-Salem Intelligent-Led Policing, locally referred to as Smart Policing, was a collaborative effort by the Winston-Salem community, Winston-Salem Police Department, and Center for Community Safety at Winston-Salem State University, in conjunction with the Office of Justice Programs' Bureau of Justice Assistance.

The goal of this data-driven project was to create systemic change in the way the police department and the community address and reduce crime. Without the dedication of the partners and the financial support of a 2-year grant from BJA, this program would not have been possible.

This implementation plan is a summary of work that each of the following individuals contributed to the project's success:

A Blueprint for Implementing Smart Policing Building Blocks

A common challenge faced by communities that have received funding for local problem-solving initiatives is finding ways to sustain activities after the grant period ends. This issue of sustaining initiatives is not a new one, and lately, many solutions are based upon the notion of institutionalizing an effective problem-solving approach. Admittedly, this is a long-term process that often is accelerated by commitment and leadership, which are essential elements in achieving any substantive organizational and operational change. Consequently, the executive leadership of the Winston-Salem Police Department (WSPD) must be commended for their willingness to integrate the processes of intelligence (information and data) analysis with the best practices of evidence-based policing models to achieve maximum crime prevention outcomes. As a result of this effort, the WSPD can be seen as a certifiable smart policing agency.

For the past two years, the Center for Community Safety (CCS) at Winston-Salem State University has partnered with the WSPD to lead efforts in implementing components of the 2009 Bureau of Justice Assistance Smart Policing Initiative (SPI). In particular, our support was meant to assist the WSPD project team with research and in mobilizing community participation. Another key objective for the CCS was to complete a training guide or toolkit that could be used to expand SPI practices to other WSPD units and to provide other jurisdictions with resources to guide and support their initiation of SPI practices. The result of this objective is this publication: "Winston-Salem Intelligent-Led Policing: A Blueprint for Implementing Smart Policing Building Blocks".

The Blueprint provides description, processes, and activities undertaken by the WSPD and the SPI project team along with documents and other resources that may be used by others to assist in their efforts to implement smart policing. In providing this report, the CCS is continuing to support its goal of incorporating its real experiences into educational and training resources for leveraging and sustaining strategic, evidence-based problem-solving approaches that help make and keep communities safe for all of its residents.

The Center for Community Safety

Safeguarding the Community Ideal through Data-Driven Collaboration

Introduction/Background

Smart Policing is a data-driven, evidence-based approach to effectively and economically resolve specific crime issues within a community through enhanced analysis of crime data, strategic deployment of resources, and strengthened partnerships within the community.

This project was made possible through a grant from the Bureau of Justice Assistance (BJA), US Department of Justice. The purpose of the two-year smart policing project—Intelligence-Led Problem Oriented Policing Project (IL-POP)—was twofold: to enhance the capabilities of the Winston-Salem Police Department's (WSPD) intelligence operations and processes, and to implement an evidence-based crime reduction strategy in a high-crime neighborhood.

The original IL-POP proposal was to establish a drug market intervention (DMI) in a Weed and Seed area; however, after building our intelligence-based tools and utilizing them to analyze our crime data, we found that a DMI was not warranted. It should be noted that when our original grant proposal was written, there was the preconceived belief that we would find our leading crime problem to be an open-air drug market within a designated Weed and Seed site.

After following the principles set forth in the Smart Policing Initiative (SPI) model, we found ourselves looking at analyses of crime data that did not support our initial preconceived beliefs. We were then forced to decide whether to pursue our original intent of our grant proposal to create a DMI within a Weed & Seed site and try to make it fit the SPI model, or to follow the SPI findings and pursue a new strategy based upon the analyses of the crime data. We chose to follow the SPI model and develop a new strategy based upon our findings.

In reviewing our crime data, we discovered that we did have a section of our city (commonly referred to as the West Salem area) that was experiencing an increased amount of Part I and Part II crimes as defined in the Uniform Crime Reporting Handbook (2004). The West Salem area exists within one of our Weed and Seed communities known as the Twin City East West Partnership. In further analyzing the crime data, the IL-POP team identified key offenses, locations, and offenders involved. The team believed that we could significantly impact the crime within this community by following established evidence-based policing strategies and developing a partnership with the community. The evidence-based policing strategies involved strategically deploying resources to focus on these key locations, offenders, and offenses utilizing proven methods to impact crime.

The changes from the original grant involved replacing the DMI strategy with a new strategy more responsive to the crime issues identified as well as the budget required to support the new strategy. The new strategy involved proven offender-based, location-based, and offense-based strategies previously established through evidence-based practices.

This document outlines the steps taken to implement the project in Winston-Salem, NC and provides examples of the tools that can be replicated in other communities.

Project Goals

Objectives for this project were to:

- Enhance proactive, crime-focused, problem-oriented performance measurements and accountability process;
- Explore the use of various technologies, techniques, and equipment to enhance the ability of WSPD to provide effective services;
- Enhance the use of analytical, statistical, and content data throughout the department;
- Improve internal and external police department communication and coordination.

Preparation

Team Structure

This project was implemented through a IL-POP project team composed of officers from WSPD, members of CCS, a researcher from the Social Sciences Department at Winston-Salem State University (WSSU), and a CCS AmeriCorps*VISTA member. This team worked with community leaders to implement the SPI. The project duration was two years.

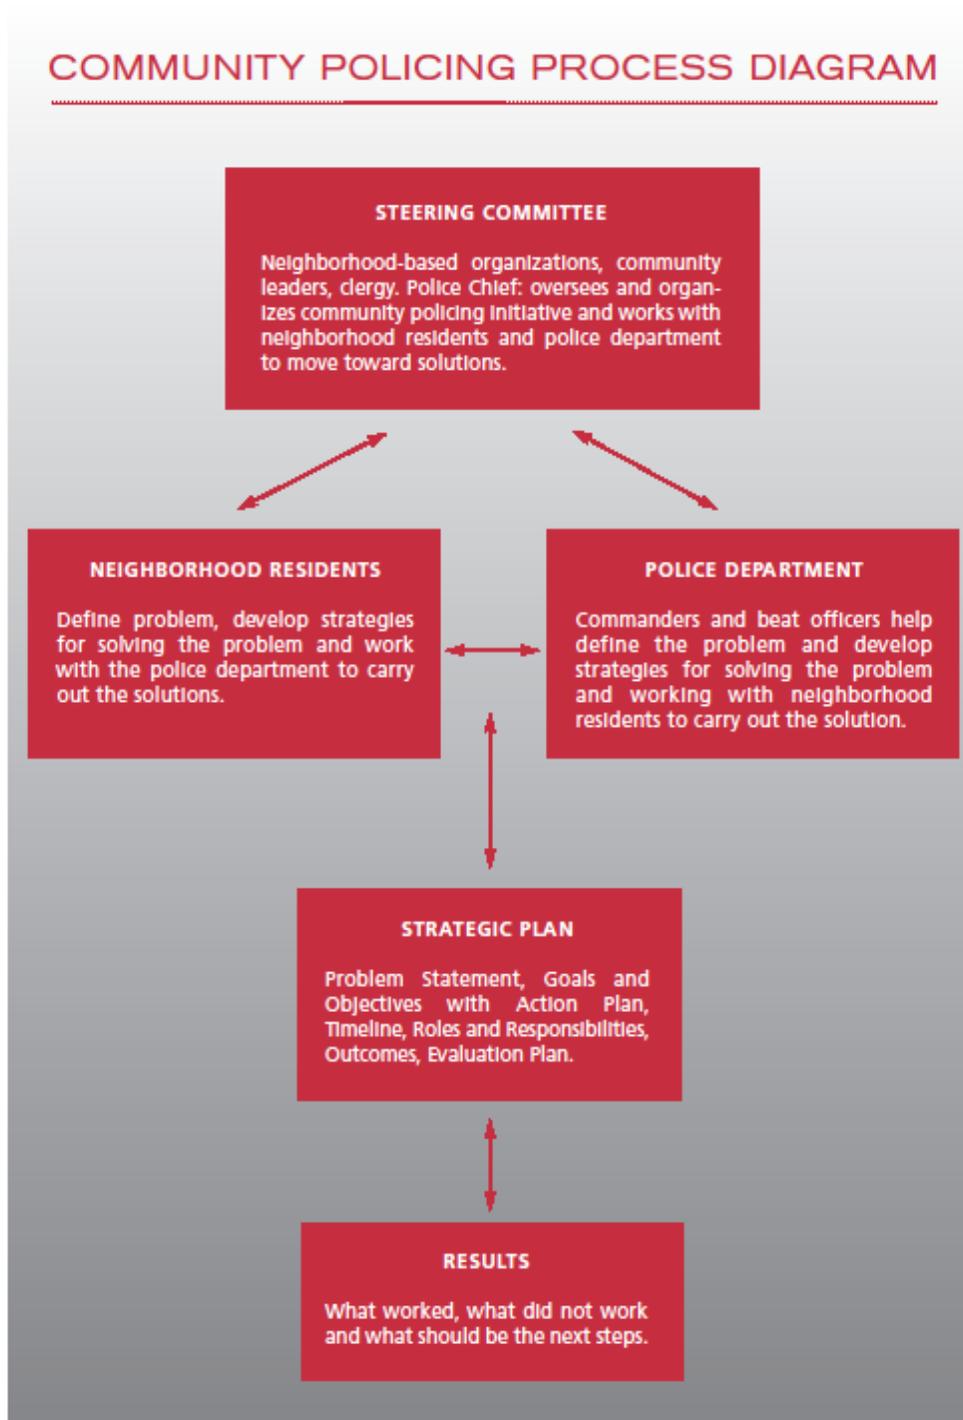

The four keys tasks of the IL-POP project team were to:

- Establish policy/guidelines for intelligence operations;
- Create communication/information-sharing procedures for internal and external consumption;
- Customize the intelligence process; and
- Develop a model implementation plan.

The project focused on the following six steps of the intelligence process:

- Planning and direction
- Data collection
- Processing/collection
- Analysis
- Dissemination
- Reevaluation

Implementation

The WSPD’s smart policing IL-POP approach was designed to complement its Three Year Strategic Plan, which entails five overall objectives:

- Improve the quality of neighborhood life and reduce criminal activity and the conditions that foster crime and the fear of crime;
- Enhance the WSPD’s problem-solving and crime-fighting capacity;
- Institutionalize intelligence-led and problem-oriented strategies within the WSPD approach to policing;
- Develop a strong partnership with the community by improving community trust, interaction, involvement, and accountability;
- Enhance agency efficiency and effectiveness.

The WSPD implemented an evidence-based crime reduction strategy utilizing these approaches in a high-crime neighborhood with several goals to be accomplished. The following goals directed the teams’ efforts:

- Make neighborhoods safer from violent and quality-of-life crime issues by reducing crime rates in the designated area.
- Enhance the quality of life and reduce the fear of crime for all citizens in the study area.
- Develop a strong partnership with the community by improving community trust, interaction, involvement, and accountability.
- Expand and further develop a statistical crime-analysis program that allows for timely and accurate review and dissemination of crime information for operational planning and implementation in the community.
- Enhance proactive, crime-focused, problem-oriented strategies;
- Improve internal and external police department communication and coordination.

Strategies for Implementing IL-POP

In an effort to communicate the strategies for this project to officers and the project team in the West Salem community, Sergeant Osborne developed the following model of “system policing” for SPI.

“Osborne-Model” System Policing: West Salem Community

Crime Data Research

1. Should be simple and focused.
2. Verify/compare reported crime with actual verified crime to ensure energy is focused on actual crime versus perceived crime.
3. Include repeat call locations:
  - Thoroughly investigate and address the true cause of the repeat calls.
  - Institute mandatory notifications to property owners if it is a rental property
4. Establish active warrants in designated area:
  - List should include residents and others that are involved in any police reports in the designated area (this can be obtained from the “person” module in our Incident Reports).
  - Conduct dedicated and relentless warrant service attempts to arrest persons identified with warrants.
5. Include information sharing between involved units:
  - Establish an information bulletin (maximum duration between bulletins should be weekly).
  - Ensure that all units involved in the strategy have access to relevant investigative data.
  - Maintain a united front for Wanted Subjects searches and the amount of tolerance for specifically designated crime areas.
6. Determine which issues are police-related problems to solve, and which issues need to be referred to other resources for resolution.

Investigations:

1. Should be systematic and relentlessly investigated to their logical conclusion. This is absolutely essential because all subsequent data will be drawn from the investigations.
2. All involved investigative units must actively engage in their investigative role and ensure information is disseminated in a timely fashion for it to be usable:
  - Uniformed Roles—Primary response and preliminary investigations
  - Undercover Roles—Surveillance and special needs investigations
  - Inconspicuous Roles— Surveillance Crime Unit (SCU) involvement/police stings/etc.
  - Detective Roles—Suspect trends and pawn shops
3. Cases should remain open until any identifiable suspects are located. This will force the officers to continue to search for the suspects and remove the anonymity element from those that commit crime.
4. Mandatory involvement and/or notification of property owners are essential for accountability.

Enforcement:

1. Relentless warrant services are pivotal and need to be based on processed/analyzed data. The ultimate goal of this step is to place the known criminals from the target area in jail so they can no longer contribute to criminal issues in that area.
2. Open-air (in public) and quality-of-life issues Violation of Chemical Substance Act (VCSA), Alcohol Beverage Control (ABC) violations, visible transient-related crime) should be aggressively enforced and suppressed. We strategically want to move any crimes being committed out of public view.
3. Community resources should be utilized for governing any geographic cause of the quality-of-life issues (e.g., Inspection, zoning, property owners).

Crime Prevention Unit:

1. Follow-up assessment by the Crime Prevention Unit (CPU) in property crimes is pivotal.
2. Consider strategically deploying the CPU in businesses that commonly attract the criminal element (e.g., motels, convenience stores, and any transient population location) to develop a systematic plan with business management to combat this issue.

Community Relations and Notification:

1. Initial Community Meeting: Include an assessment of crime data and comparison of the community crime perceptions and police department crime data; make an initial assessment of who will ultimately assume “ownership” of each of the perceived problems.
2. Periodic Update: Use a format that is agreeable by all involved (e.g., group e-mail in the form of the traditional “Police Blotter”).

Reassessment of Data:

1. A timeframe and a clear and reasonable measure of success should be established prior to beginning a deployment of personnel in this fashion.
2. Re-evaluate crime data and crime trends near the end of the designated period and determine future deployment needs or closure to the current deployment.

Management of Project:

1. One person should be designated as the “Manager” of the deployment area for accountability and dissemination purposes.
2. It is essential to have one person act as the “gatekeeper” for both directions of information flow.
3. These positions also ensure consistency and ultimate accountability for the deployment of resources.

Staffing and Deployment:

Selecting the right leader to supervise officers deployed in the target area is essential to the success and transparency of the officers in the community. The officers selected for this project must have the ability and desire to change the way they think about policing and accept the “new” guidelines for interacting with residents. Officers were strategically selected, trained, and deployed using this process:

1. Provided smart policing training to Command Staff
2. Provided information to operational personnel about the smart policing strategy
3. Briefed personnel on:
  - Key offenders
  - Key locations
  - Key offenses
4. Conducted Time of Day/Day of Week analysis
5. Initiated strategic deployment and enforcement activities
6. Conducted a periodic review of deployment activities
7. Evaluated effectiveness
8. Analyzed current crime information
9. Made modifications of deployment for:
  - Key offenders
  - Key locations
  - Key offenses
  - Time of day/day of week
- 3.

Collaboration with Other Agencies

The police departments must be open to collaborate with community agencies to bring a sense of community to this new initiative. The WSPD identified key partners in this initiative. These partners included:

- U.S. Attorney's Office, Middle District of North Carolina
- North Carolina Probation and Parole
- Forsyth County District Attorney's Office
- Winston-Salem Police Department

- City of Winston-Salem
- Winston-Salem State University, Center for Community Safety
- Habitat for Humanity
- Housing Authority of Winston-Salem
- Community stakeholders
- Neighborhood Watch members

Engaging Crime Analysts

Effective data was gathered by asking and reporting the right information or information that is analyzed and provides useful intelligence. It was important that crime analysts and police officers communicate and understand the language used in requesting data and explaining the data. The WSPD crime analysis team compiled data on crime statistics, providing officers with information and evaluation of their impact in the targeted area.

Engaging the Community

SPI is a strategy that is based upon the successful participation and support of community residents. Consequently, determining the appropriate community engagement and mobilization strategy is critical to achieving the desired outcomes. Community engagement connects community members with problem-solving solutions for issues that affect them, which are critical to the success of any initiative. The most effective way to improve safety or reach the public is to engage those community members experiencing the problems. Community engagement means involving community members in all activities, from identifying the relevant issues and making decisions about how to address them, to evaluating and sharing the results with the community. The issues were identified through a series of focus group sessions. The information collected from the focus group sessions was compiled, and reoccurring concerns were addressed in this project.

Police departments must understand that the relationship with community residents is vital to the success of the project. Police officers must develop a working relationship with community residents and show concern to them as individuals. Police officers must be visible, not just when a crime has been committed. They must attend community events and be seen as partners, not just patrol officers. Community engagement has three interrelated objectives in the smart policing strategy:

- To support law enforcement
- To challenge the community to action
- To complement a larger community-change process

Addressing Problems Encountered

As problems were identified, the WSPD addressed them in a professional manner to keep the community trust. Key leaders of the target community were included in strategy meetings with the smart policing leadership team, and any problems or concerns were addressed at that time. When problems are encountered, it is important to consider the following steps to minimize conflict:

- Answer questions openly and honestly.
- Remind all parties of the goals of the project.
- Bring in an outside facilitator or mediator to moderate the discussion or have a respected community member, such as a clergy member or community organizer, moderate.

- Make sure that there is a diverse representation of the community participating in the discussion.
- Summarize common themes and issues at regular intervals in the discussion.
- Use a consensus process to come to resolutions, decisions, and conclusions

Improving Relations in Socially Disorganized Neighborhoods

Developing a strong partnership with the community by improving community trust, interaction, involvement, and accountability; enhancing the quality of life; and reducing the fear of crime for all citizens was the foundation to a successful outcome. There may be multiple strategies in various portions of the target community to develop trust of the police department and acceptance of the project. The WSPD committed to:

- Increased police presence
- Continuity of patrol officers
- Providing direction as the residents were encouraged to become a part of the solutions to their problems
- Providing a linkage between non-communicating community organizations
- Supporting outlets for the community residents to come together to meet and open the lines of communication

BJA Smart Policing

As part of a research study of the impact of using data-driven policing strategy to impact crime rates in the city of Winston-Salem, we are conducting this survey to help implement “smart policing” strategies. This smart policing survey is being conducted to find out the community’s priorities of crime control and public safety. We will first ask some questions about you to help us interpret the results of the survey, and then we will ask about your thoughts on police work.

Do NOT put your name on this survey, and anything you write will be kept confidential.

Thank you for taking the time to complete this survey!

I. Directions: We would like to ask you some questions about yourself that will help us to interpret the results of this survey.

1. What is your current age? _____

2. Which of the following best describes your racial or ethnic group?

- A. African American or Black _____
- B. Asian _____
- C. Latino _____
- D. White _____

CHECKLIST NEIGHBORHOOD RESIDENT SURVEY

Logistics for Community Forums

- Use of microphones for moderators and for audience so all can be easily understood if forum is a large group and/or in a large space
- Name tags for everyone
- Where and how to seat the moderator and steering committee (seating should not reflect a hierarchical structure)
- Use of sign language or other language translator(s)
- Placement of chairs and/or tables for the audience
- Air-conditioning/heating level: will someone be present at the meeting who knows how to regulate air levels
- Location and cleanliness of the restrooms
- Arrangements for attendees to be greeted as they arrive by members of the steering committee and the police
- A table at the entrance with copies of the meeting agenda and other information for attendees, staffed by the police and members of the steering committee who are prepared to answer questions
- Pencil and paper for meeting participants
- Childcare arrangements: if included, where, for what ages, and how will parents know where to find it? If not, are children welcome in the meeting? Babies?
- Refreshments: if they are served, where will they be served? Be sure to use disposable containers and napkins
- Adequate waste baskets to accommodate trash
- Arrangements for clean-up after the meeting

PLACES TO PUBLICIZE COMMUNITY FORUMS

- Local community-based organizations serving various community members (Boys & Girls Clubs, YMCA, after-school programs, elder-care organizations, organizations that serve particular ethnicities, immigrant populations, or minority groups)
- Churches, mosques, synagogues and other places of worship
- Local city or other government agencies that are located or have clients in the neighborhood (post office, fire and police stations, schools, hospitals or community care clinics, and other walk-in service points)
- Stores, restaurants, supermarkets and other walk-in businesses that post announcements
- Neighborhood newspapers or organizations that send out newsletters, such as local legislative representatives
- Neighborhood business and social organizations (Rotary and Lions Clubs, Chambers of Commerce, Elks, BPOE, and the like)
- Places where people gather regularly, such as local parks, recreation or senior centers

DATA GATHERING TOOLS

The following software was used by the WSPD to collect, analyze, and evaluate crime in the target area.

Pistol RMS (produced by OSSI)

Pistol is the records management system and contains our data other than call data.

Visual CAD (produced by OSSI)

Call data is stored in the CAD system.

ArcGIS 9.3

ArcGIS is our mapping software. It allows us to not only provide maps of various areas of the city, but also add data using Crystal Reports to create data layers based on information from our databases.

Crystal Reports 8.5 and Crystal Reports 11

Both versions of Crystal Reports are report-writing software that allows us to pull data from those databases (or any other database) and put it in a more easily readable format that the database software is capable of translating. WSPD uses two versions because Crystal 11 has some increased functionality (such as the ability to add mug shot photos) but the 8.5 version allows WSPD to make the reports available for officers to run, which is a function we do not have for Crystal 11.

The data was selected based on the Fire Demand Zones (FDZs) that contain the selected areas, with FDZs being our smallest reporting area.
